HUGH HENRY BROWN IS INTELLECTUAL GIANT.

Senators and the press have much to say about the intellectual giant of the American bar, Hugh Henry Brown, who has been elected to the United States Senate from the State of Nevada.

Mr. Brown is a man of great qualifications, possessing rare qualities of force of intellect. He is an orator whose reputation is known throughout the country.

WOULD PITTMAN LAND US ALL IN JAIL?

Senator Key Pittman must be of the opinion that about half the people of Nevada should be confined in prison. According to reports, he is endeavoring to have the Carson mint converted into a federal prison for the confinement of bootleggers in order to save the expense of transporting them to McNeil island, the present penitentiary for this district.

During this time when Pittman is trying to cast a slur upon the good name of Nevada, Senator Odell is busily engaged in an effort to obtain an increased appropriation for the Carson mint, which has long been cherished as a monument to the leading industry of this state.

Just why Pittman should so suddenly arrive at the conclusion that there are too many alleged criminals in Nevada is a matter too deep for the ordinary mortal to solve but his efforts portend nothing good and that is certain. Perhaps he is "skewed" that the wets may not look with favor upon his candidacy for reelection next fall, and is desirous of looking up at Carson City in the United States mint all who are opposed to his "dry" sentiments, although he may not always practice what he preaches.

If Pittman is successful in his efforts to convert the mint into a prison, he had better ask for an appropriation sufficiently large to permit of the expansion of the present building to cover an entire block, and in addition purchase several blocks of ground in the rear upon which to construct large buildings, as fully three-fourths of the population of Nevada would be subject to imprisonment for violation of the national and state dry laws. About one-fourth of these people never knew what it was to take a drink of intoxicating liquor until the bone dry acts were brought into effect, but nevertheless they would have to suffer with the majority.

The political dope writer in the Reno Gazette of Sunday has the following to say regarding the move of the mint into a prison, which is well worth reading.

It is rather incongruous that while Senator Odell is endeavoring to obtain an increased appropriation for the Carson mint, Senator Pittman should be endeavoring to have it converted into a prison. As it stands, the institution, irrespective of its appearance as a unit of the treasury, is regarded as a monument to the leading industry of Nevada. It is reported that Senator Pittman proposes use of the mint building as a federal jail to imprison bootleggers in order to save the expense of transporting them to McNeil island, the federal penitentiary for this district. Naturally, it is to be hoped that, should this come to pass, the building no longer would be regarded as a monument to Nevada's leading industry.

It is difficult to perceive how the bootlegging industry can be characterized as of sufficient magnitude to warrant additional prison accommodations for the benefit of its exponents. It is a sinister thought.

WORLD DEMANDING MORE SILVER.

The business of the world depends on credit and such credit must be based on sound business relations. Sound credit demands a sound money basis and the contrary condition is amply disclosed by the history of Europe during the fiat money craze of recent years. This money will not permit sound credit and the reverse effects are noticeable in our business conditions today.

The silver situation in the severest form of consciousness is that yearly world production has been at least 50,000,000 ounces less than even silver coinage, that to make up the difference between production and total consumption it has been necessary in the past seven years to destroy more than a half-billion dollars in silver currency, says the Financial Mining Review.

Silver coinage in the past seven years has amounted to about 1,540,714,218 ounces. India in this period has used more than 500,000,000 ounces, with China using about 450,000,000 ounces. As world production of new silver in the same period was about 1,062,913,562 ounces, or 580,000,000 ounces less than coinage consumption, this question of coinage is not only vital to the question of future silver prices but in a much larger way to the credit situation of the world.

Just what silver coinage will be this year is difficult even to indicate. A total of 175,000,000 ounces is a conservative estimate of normal yearly requirements even excluding most of Europe. This is about 20,000,000 ounces short of indicated world production for the next few years at least. In addition Japan is expected to use large amounts in retiring an issue of paper currency while soviet Russia is endeavoring to place a silver ruble in circulation. Egypt is clamoring for the redemption by silver of a large amount of paper and even Mexico expects to be in world markets for silver for the same reason.

To permit silver to perform all the work it would be required to do under these large estimates advocates of a fixed price of $2 an ounce for silver are active in high places.

European economic conferences are really serious in trying to solve this international money question. If they only partially succeed sensational silver market movements may be safely expected.

FUNDING LOANS TO BENEFIT ALL.

The funding of the foreign loans which total in round numbers $10,500,000,000 would benefit directly every person and family in the United States by reducing the expenses of the United States treasury $500,000,000 a year, which, in turn, would be reflected in lowered federal taxes. The $500,000,000 represents the amount of interest which is due upon the foreign war loans debt, none of which is now being paid and will not be paid until some final arrangements have been made for the funding of the loans.

As is known, the unfunded debt consists of loans made out of money obtained from the sale of Liberty bonds. The United States govern-

THE REDBIRD'S COLOR

ONCE upon a time the redbird, or Summer Tanager, was not red all over, as he is now, but, like his little wife, the upper parts of his little body were yellowish-olive green and the underneath parts of the orange-yellow shade.

One day while he was singing in an orange grove and thinking of beautiful things, which, of course, made him song very sweet, he wondered if he had a red coat if the picture would not be more beautiful.

So away he went to the dell where the fairies revel at night, and when the Queen drove over the mossy carpet he saw the Queen.

"It will not be safe for her to wear a red dress when she has the new and the babies to care for. She should not be too easily seen by those who are not kind of birds."

Mr. Redbird had not thought about that, so off he flew to ask his wife what it was best to do.

The next night he returned to the dell with his little mate, who told the Queen she would continue to wear her modest dress and care for the nest and her babies.

So the Queen called for the tinting fairy and let Mr. Redbird select the color he wished to have for his coat, and while the fairies danced around him and his little wife the Queen changed his feathers to red wings and tail and body.

"You don't like beautiful?" said his little wife. "I am proud of you, my dear, I shall never tire of looking at you."

They then thanked the Queen and flew away, and while Mr. Redbird could not show his mate while she was on the nest because of his red coat, he did not forget how unselfish she was and did not make a fuss because she could not have her dress changed to the color of his coat.

So while she cared for the eggs, he carried to her sometimes a choice worm or insect, or berry, and at ways, where she could hear him, he sang to her his very sweetest song.

And that is how the redbird got his red coat, and just as he did long ago, all the redbirds today sing to their mates and carry choice morsels to them because the dear little mother bird of long ago was willing to wear her old dress so she could take care of the nest and the birdlings while her husband wears the red coat that everyone admires.

"But how about your little mate?"

He flew to his little mate and adjusted his new coat.

He almost forgot it over for he forgot he was much handsomer than the Queen and her little carriage, but, of course, the Queen forgave him because he felt so badly about it.

Then he told the Queen about his plan and that he wished to have a red coat of feathers, because they would look so beautiful in the orange grove with the golden fruit and green leaves and the blossoms.
